

CSC290: Parallelism Worksheet

Some of the following sentences contain faulty parallelism. Correct them so that elements in a list have the same grammatical structure.

1. You will need to write code, write comments, and to write documentation.
2. The key to a successful software is to establish clear communication paths, define best practices, and version control.
3. At the party, my sister helped us bake the cake, gathering the kids for games, clean up and to drive some kids home.
4. My TA warned me to revise my essay and that I should pay close attention to parallel structures.
5. The survey's sample size was too small, questions unclear, results ambiguous.
6. Make sure your project plan includes deliverables, what you're assuming, and timing of deadlines.
7. Each member of your group need to produce a code commit, document their code, and participate in the group.
8. In my chess program, a player can make a move, undo making a move, and to exit the program.
9. To my horror, my pants looked stained, torn and it had wrinkles.
10. Our latest instructor was enthusiastic, cracked a lot of jokes, is demanding, and failed half the class.